

Raymond Petridis. PhD.

Dr. Petridis received a BA in Theology from the National Capodistrian University of Athens, Greece (1998), an MA in Continental Philosophy from the University of Essex, U.K. (2000), an MPhil (2005) and PhD (2013) from the New School for Social Research, New York. He got his doctoral Viva with the Thesis Kondylis and the Problem of Nihilism (ProQuest, University of Michigan Dissertations Publishing 2013).

His research interests include: Ethics; 18 – 20th century Continental Philosophy; Ancient Greek Philosophy; Theories of the Political; Normative and Descriptive-Explanatory Theories of Decision; Intersubjective Theories of Recognition, Subjection and Moral Injury; Methodology of Social Sciences. He is a specialized Kondylis & Nietzsche scholar and is currently working on a hegelian in inspiration theory of recognition. He taught at the Eugene Lang College, New York and College Year in Athens [study abroad program] and is currently a Research Fellow at the Athens Institute of Education and Research.

Books: Kondylis and the Problem of Nihilism (2016, to be published by Eurasia Publications); Hegel and Kondylis. The Hegelian Genealogy of Dualism, The Unhappy Consciousness and the Kondylean “Enlightened Stoicism” (2011, Eurasia Publications).

Articles: “Power and Authority in Kondylis’ Late Work” (Neos Hermis Journal, issue 10, 2014:118-162); “The Philosophical Importance of Tragedy in Nietzsche’s Work. An Alternative Reading of “The Birth of Tragedy” with Critical Remarks in the Light of the Kondylean Worldview”(Journal of Nea Hestia, April 2008: 722-741); The Hegelian in inspiration ‘Modern Antigone’ and its embellished position in contemporary philosophical-political theory” (to be published).